

This website ...

We designed this site to appeal to youth, to give an overview of the types of careers available in surveying, from technician to professional. Have a look through its pages to see if the young people you know might be interested and send them a link.

Surveyors Associations ...

There is a surveyors association in your province that has lots of information and people that will answer your specific questions. There is also a federal association that relates to the profession as it is practiced in the north, on Indian reserves, offshore, and in national parks. Here's a link to a listing of their websites. Send them a note or give them a call.

Surveyors in your city or town ...

Surveyors are a friendly lot and many would be happy to participate in a career day, answer questions, give you a tour, or put you in touch with someone who can provide what you're looking for. Look them up in the yellow pages, or on the surveyors association website for your area.

Colleges and Universities ...

Colleges and universities will provide specific information about their programs, their prerequisites, and the careers that they lead to. For a direct links to colleges and universities across the country that have surveying programs, look here.

Canadian Board of Examiners for Professional Surveyors (CBEPS) website...

The Canadian Board of Examiners for Professional Surveyors (CBEPS) has a guidebook with detailed information on the steps to qualify as a licensed professional surveyor.

www.setyourboundaries.ca